

"This sticker design was created to describe the Advancing Cultural Competency (ACCC) Program. It is intended for people to understand that even though everyone comes from various backgrounds, they all deserve respect, no matter what their life experiences are.

The gradient black to beige/khaki shade border on the top and the bottom of the image, symbolizes the variations of skin tones amongst our campus community. This is to remind us that people come in all shades and should be respected.

The multicolored triangles symbolize the multiplicity of aspects that one person holds. These aspects overlap and are colorful because they are to show that a person's life experience is a result of their intersecting identities. Looking at the colors, they can mean something different for other people because of how they are socialized within their own culture.

The large triangle is to represent the lower end of a diamond. Like any coal put under pressure, they become diamonds. This is a portrayal of the resilience of an individual's experiences and how they come to be the person that they are.
